There were many stations that endeavoured to be both fun and educational at this event. For more pictures see page 6 and 7.

Follow the election

With the close of nominations for municipal election on July 27, we checked in with those not already elected to introduce readers to any new names and faces. This week we cover the Clearview candidates, next week we will bring forward the Mulmur candidates and next month, we will be getting into more comprehensive coverage, delving into platforms and election issues with all candidates. See Meet the challengers on pages 3 and 8.

Ducking out

Creemore Skating Club is holding its fourth annual Rubber Duck Race on Saturday, August 25.

This year, there will be a corporate duck race, in addition to the regular duck race of 500 yellow rubber ducks, dumped from the Collingwood Street Bridge.

Businesses are encouraged to decorate a duck and display it in their window until they are collected on August 23. Tickets for the regular duck race are $5 each and on sale at The Creemore Echo office, located at 3 Caroline St. W.

Stories saved and told one stone at a time

By Lydia Sobschak

The restoration of the oldest cemetery in the township, Old Zion Presbyterian Cemetery, has been completed and will be displayed at the dedication on August 18.

"To see something that's just a total mess become something pleasing to the eye, it's just incredible," said Janie Cooper-Wilson.

Cooper-Wilson, 72, is the founder, executive director, and co-chair of the Cemetery Defence and Preservation Committee, which was founded 21 years ago.

Cooper-Wilson said she enjoyed learning about the Old Zion Presbyterian Cemetery.

"There's a tremendous amount of history here," said Cooper-Wilson.

The earliest stone in this cemetery is dated as 1833, and included in the cemetery are a civil war veteran and some individuals who would have been among the early pioneers. Many nationalities are also represented here, including Scottish, English, Dutch, and German.

"Their stories need to be told. It's been lost," said Cooper-Wilson.

"It was a totally different world, and the simplicity of it is amazing."

Cooper-Wilson said the individuals buried here deserve their resting place to maintain its dignity and respect.

Cooper-Wilson said she is trying to promote stricter legislations that would ensure inactive and unapproved, or unregistered, cemeteries are taken care of and do not fall into disrepair.

In 2015, the cemetery was added as a project for Cooper-Wilson's committee to work on.

Last fall, the overgrowth was cleared away, the monument restoration company viewed the site, and a budget was given to the municipality.

In June 2018, the debris was cleared away, some stones were lifted and glued, and a vapour barrier was put in place along with limestone screenings.

With the stones being so fragile, Cooper-Wilson said it was difficult to lift them without causing damage, and they needed to use glue and plywood to hold some stones together.

"It's a long process, and it's not for everyone," said Cooper-Wilson.

"People are hesitant to get involved for a number of reasons. Death is a touchy subject."

Meet the challengers for a seat at the council

Clearview - Ward 1

Al Bell

Al Bell, 66, is a lifelong resident of Nottawa. He currently works in sales and leasing at Mike Jackson GM after a 47-year career at Foley's Furniture.

He served one term of council from 2003-2006 and was chair of the committee of adjustment from 2006-2010 and is past president of the Collingwood Kinsmen Club.

Bell's hobbies include golf, skiing, reading and travelling.

He narrowly lost to Doug Measures in the last election.

Ed Christie

A 42-year-Nottawa resident, Ed Christie is best known as the foundering proprietor of Christie's Clothing in Collingwood.

This is his first run for public office in Clearview Township but he served one term on council in Collingwood, where he has been a member and chair of the BIA, Rotary Club, Heritage Committee, Sign Committee and as a councillor sat on the hospital board, NVCA and was involved in the early stage of trail development.

Christie is married with two children and four grandchildren.

Born and raised in Collingwood, Christie went to the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph after graduating from Collingwood Collegiate Institute. He bought a menswear shop in 1976 and broadened it to carry fashion for men and women. He is now retired from Christie's Clothing and his son and daughter run the business. He says he is ready to give back to Clearview as councillor for Ward 1.

He enjoys cycling, walking, and skiing at Osler Bluff Ski Club, where he is a member.

Phyllis Dineen

Phyllis Dineen moved to Clearview with her parents, Orin and Barbara Ryerse, and five siblings in the "Summer of 69" (like the Brian Adams song), back when it was still known as Nottawasaga Township.

She and her husband Kevan bought their first home in Collingwood in 1976 but moved back to Clearview to raise their two sons, Dan and David, who attended Nottawa Central Public School, just like their mom. She has two grandchildren, John and Emma.

Dineen is now retired from working at the Collingwood General and Marine Hospital, and is a licensed real estate professional.

Like any resident, parent and grandparent, she said she wants a safe, happy community that invokes pride in the township.

"I bring a willingness to listen and learn with honesty, integrity and a little common sense added in for good measure," said Dineen. "Recent years have seen the Small Halls celebrated, a new Library being built and more organized recreational possibilities for our families. I am so proud of the young adults of the township and their renewed interest and devotion to these endeavours. If elected I look forward to working with my fellow elected officials to maintain the wonderful place in which we live."

Clearview - Ward 2

Donna Baylis

Donna Baylis, 54, has lived in this area for most of her life, attending Banting Memorial high school in Alliston. She spent some time in Toronto, and with her partner Steve, moved to Dunedin in 1992, when her daughter Dariel was born.

Baylis has worked for much of her career in the financial services industry.

She was active in the fight to stop the mega quarry, is a Dunedin Hall volunteer and organizes the Creemore community Christmas dinner.

Baylis ran for council in 2014, losing out to Kevin Elwood, who is not running this time around.

Doug McKechnie

Doug McKechnie was born and raised in Nottawa and has lived in Clearview most of his life, his family going back several generations. His wife has lived here for over 25 years after emigrating from Scotland. Together, they have two sons.

After studying aviation at Seneca College, McKechnie began his career as a pilot at Collingwood Regional Airport. He moved on to Air Canada in 1979 and recently retired after 38 years. He was also a paramedic based out of Collingwood for a number of years in the 1980s and 1990s.

He has been a member of numerous service clubs (Rotary, Kinsmen, Optimist) and the past years he was a member of the Collingwood Regional Airport Services Board, until its recent dissolution. "This introduced me to local politics and has given me an insight to the tremendous development opportunities proposed for the airport," said McKechnie. "As a pilot and a training instructor on the Boeing 787 aircraft, I was called as an expert witness at the Environmental Review Tribunal during our fight against the wind turbines. I spent over 40 hours preparing my testimony and attended every day of the hearings. I was cross-examined by the wind turbine's proponent and government lawyers and like to think that I played an important role in our victory."

The best keeps getting better

The Creemore Children's Festival is billed as the best play date of the year and we would tend to agree. As with any great play day for kids it is made possible, in part, by the thoughtfulness and caring of the adults who set the whole thing up.

A safe environment, healthy (and/or) delicious snacks, and a space that cultivates the imagination are all part of a successful visit for children. All of these elements were provided by the many, many volunteers, agencies and businesses that come together each year to make this event possible - and bigger and better.

Another upside of the event is that adults get a chance to play together too. We at the Echo enjoyed making loud noodle sculptures and pretending to be garbage men during the festival.

Being a volunteer in this community is a great form of play. It challenges the participants, allows them to try new things and there may even be some delicious snacks. We make new friends and at the end of a success like the Children's Festival we all sleep like babies.

LETTER

Spirited race a good thing

Dear Editor

I would like to comment on the article "Mulmur councillors run for mayor, deputy mayor", particularly the comment from Ross Bailey "Why has this Council decided to destroy itself?"

There is no doubt that this current council's term was more harmonious. In my opinion, the previous council was painful to watch, and the council before that needed to be watched. I am glad to see that all three Council categories will be contested. Perhaps Councillor Horner is not the only candidate that felt more comfortable running now that CAO Terry Horner has retired. But if one of the positions had been acclaimed near the deadline, I would have registered to run. Not because I wanted to be on council, and not even necessarily because I thought I would do a better job. I would have done it because I haven't been impressed with the last three council members who were acclaimed, and I don't like it when the electorate has no real idea what a candidate's positions are, or what their vision is for the Township.

So, much like when I ran in 2010, we have two councillors trying to move up, and a four person race for councillor. Which means three people won't get in. In 2010, the electorate decided to replace the incumbent mayor and deputy mayor. We will never know whether the township would have been better off with a different result, or even if any of the three who didn't get in felt they had "dodged a bullet". But at least we had the satisfaction of knowing that there was a spirited, issue orientated race, with candidates with different views. And we have that again in 2018. You can't really ask for more.

You just never know with cancer

by Cat Flack

And so the cancer ride continues. Finally got into the chemo program with my first dose being two weeks ago this Friday. Just starting to feel good and bam-oh they are going to hit me again. The oncology unit at RVH is very calming and inviting, if I dare say so myself, with nurses very attentive and checking on you constantly. I asked the nurse who was looking after me, about how many people do they put through the unit on a weekly basis. She said that the average is about 90 people a week. That's a lot of people, and then you consider how many other hospitals put through at least 5 or 6 times that same number a week, shocking how wide the cancer sea has spread. The first drug that they put into me is called the "red devil" because of the red colour and how the devil it makes you feel. Going for the first time you never know how you are going to react to the drug or how it is going to make you feel. I didn't notice any immediate feelings but the rest of the weekend wasn't much fun. Extreme fatigue was the first symptom, the others I won't mention. Before you even start the injections you have to take several anti-nausea medications starting a good hour before and continuing for a couple of days after. Then there is the injection that you have to give yourself in the stomach starting on day 2 after the chemo and continues until three days before the next round, you do these injections throughout the whole eight sessions of chemo that I will be going through. This injection is to boost your white blood cell count so that you have some fight against just the regular germs floating out in the world. During chemo you do not want to be exposed to flu or cold or any other common illness, it can mean death for a chemo patient. I would have loved to take my grandsons to the Children's Festival on Saturday, but the risk of being around those short little germ breeding grounds is too dangerous for me; it sounds like it was such a fun day.

As I was told that this would probably be my last week of having hair on my head (and all other body parts, Yippee, no shaving the legs of this dolly all summer!) I decided to channel my inner David Bowie and go with magenta hair and dig out my vintage DG white bug eye glasses, if you didn't recognize me and thought that dear David had risen from the dead, well... just me. The day before you go for chemo you have to go to your local hospital and have blood work done to check your white blood cell count, if too low then they make you skip a week. You have a teleconference with your oncologist who asks you if you had any major problems or concerns, they can go to different anti-nausea meds but they still can't give you the winning lottery numbers, oh well, worth a try lamenting about it. Till next time...

Summer Salad Days

By Elaine Collier

Summer seems to be flying by! I have been laid up for a while due to knee replacement surgery so you may not have seen me much around Creemore lately. I can now manage stumping around quite well and so have been slowly getting back into the swing of my usual activities, especially those food related. Having been a bit house bound over June and July, it will be good to get back to the Saturday morning farmers' market once more, as well as stroll along Mill Street and catch up with friends!

I have grown various herbs on my back deck for many years, such as rosemary, chives, thyme and Italian parsley. This year I decided to throw a few lettuces into the mix. I don't know if it was the weather we've had or what, but I have had a bumper crop of salad greens for some time now (with little to no bugs) and not that much attention on my part, aside from diligently watering on a regular basis. Sometimes gardening with benign neglect works out!

While we like to eat as many fresh greens as we can during the peak summer season, a plain green salad can get a bit boring at times. There are all sorts of ways to jazz it up a bit, and this recipe has become one of our favourite summer go to meals. Try this interesting dinner salad that is good as your main with a slice of homemade garlic bread, or serve it as a side dish to accompany some of your favourite barbecued meats. As an added bonus, you can serve it warm or cold. It is also pretty kid friendly too, as I've met few children who don't like simple cheese filled pasta!

Feedback is great and I would love to hear from you. Just email me at elaine@avalonclearview.com. Until next time, eat well, live well....

LEMONY CHICKEN & PASTA SUMMER SALAD

Serves 4 as a side dish/2 as dinner

Cooked and shredded chicken breast meat (1 breast per person)

1 package tri-colour cheese tortellini

2 large garlic cloves, minced

¼ teaspoon salt

½ cup extra virgin olive oil

¼ cup freshly squeezed lemon juice

1 teaspoon lemon zest

1 teaspoon liquid honey

½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

4 cups of salad greens – a combination of arugula, butter lettuce and red leaf lettuce is nice

¼ cup shaved parmesan (grated will also do)

To prepare the vinaigrette and let the flavours meld, whisk together garlic, salt, extra virgin olive oil, lemon juice, lemon zest, honey and black pepper in a small bowl. Let sit until you are ready to dress the salad.

For the chicken, you can either roast or barbecue your own or use a store bought rotisserie bird. In a large pot of boiling, salted water, cook the tortellini as per package instructions then drain and set aside in colander.

In a large salad bowl, toss the shredded chicken, cooked tortellini and vinaigrette together with the salad greens until well blended. Serve topped with shaved parmesan – can be served slightly warm or cold.

Keep your pet safe during the dog days of summer

The Ontario SPCA's 2018 No Hot Pets campaign is underway in partnership with SPCAs and humane societies from across Canada to remind the public about the danger of leaving pets unattended in vehicles.

"I left the window down for him" and "I wasn't going to be gone long" are just a few of the excuses the Ontario SPCA has heard.

There is no excuse for leaving a pet unattended in a vehicle.

The Ontario SPCA has a zero tolerance policy and charges will be laid if animals are found by an Ontario SPCA agent or inspector to be in distress inside a vehicle.

The Ontario SPCA is asking the public to share the dangers of leaving pets in vehicles using the hashtag #nohotpets on social media. You can also help make a difference by going online to nohotpets.ca to take the pledge never to leave an animal in a vehicle and to report it if you see it happen. Those who pledge will receive a free No Hot Pets window decal for their vehicles, while supplies last.

"People still aren't getting the message about how dangerous it is to leave your pet unattended in a vehicle," says Connie Mallory, Chief Inspector,

Ontario SPCA. "Leave your pet at home, and if you must take your pet, make sure that someone is with it at all times."

Businesses across the province are also getting on board with the campaign and are welcoming animals into their place of business while pet owners shop. For a complete list of participants, as well as registration.

Parked cars can quickly reach deadly temperatures, even on relatively mild days with the car parked in the shade and the windows slightly open. Dogs have a limited ability to sweat, so even a short time in a hot environment can be life-threatening.

If you observe an animal suffering in the heat, call 310-SPCA (7722) or your local police.

Meet the challengers for a seat at the council

Clearview - Ward 3

John Broderick

John Broderick was raised on Broderick Farms, in neighbouring Osprey Township, and moved to Collingwood in 1974. John and his wife Rhonda married in 1979, the same year they founded J&R Cycle. They moved the shop and their home to its current location in Ward 3 at the north end of Clearview Township in 1982. It has been a joy and a privilege for the couple to run a business and raise their three children (Lorelei, Rachael, and Brandy) in Clearview Township for the past 36 years.

John and Rhonda are active volunteers, being board members for several Snowmobile, Motorcycle and ATV clubs over the past 30 years. They have been instrumental in organizing a multitude of rides and charity events including J&R Cycle's 'Feed a Friend' ride, which ran for 20 years.

Always involved in tourism and recreation Broderick became president of the Ontario Federation of All Terrain Vehicle Clubs (OFATV), in 2001 and served three consecutive two-year terms. In this capacity Broderick dealt with not only the clubs of Ontario, but also Municipal, Provincial and Federal governments and organizations. As OFATV President John was instrumental in helping make bill 11 and regulation 316-03 realities. This legislation had a dramatic and positive impact on the development of legitimate ATV recreation and tourism in Ontario.

Broderick ran in the last election, narrowly losing to Robert Walker.

Maqsood Dogar

Maqsood Dogar moved from Mississauga to Stayner in 2004 and has been living here for 14 years. He graduated from the University of Western Ontario in 2000, as well as George Brown college for business information systems in 1996. He has been managing Stayner's Hasty Market for the past eight years after having managed Mac's from 2004-2008. He has been married to his wife for 19 years and has four loving children. Dogar is a very energetic person. His knowledge makes him a perfect candidate for the role of a councillor because he may be young but he is also wise. With Clearview Township expanding and more houses being built around Stayner, his goal is to connect Stayner and Collingwood to Barrie and Toronto via Go train and to work to support the development of local healthcare facilities.

Clearview - Ward 4

Acclaimed - Robert Walker

Clearview - Ward 5

Anthony Sist

Anthony Sist was born in Toronto and has over his 56 years, gradually felt the pull northward. Born to Italian immigrants he learned early on that you had to work hard for what you wanted in life. He began as a carpenter's apprentice at the tender age of 12 and stayed true to his calling, creating a thriving company, building people's homes for the next 43 years.

As anyone over the age of 50 knows, life flies by quickly while you're busy making a life, but Anthony found time to coach baseball as well as get involved in hockey for himself and with the community kids. Anthony has always taken an interest in bettering the community he lives in by volunteering his time and skills to anyone who needs them. Two years ago their kids all flew the coop and Anthony retired. Feeling the pull north again, he and his wife Sona, moved to the quaint village of Creemore, where they now have a busy life renovating their home and raising their fur kids, Jaksun and Lion. When asked why he would want to spend his retirement years in council, he stated "running for council member of ward 5 in Clearview township to better my new community seems to be the next adventure to add to my happy life."

Clearview - Ward 6

Acclaimed - Connie Leishman

Clearview - Ward 7

Incumbent - Deb Bronec

John Lamers

John Lamers was born and raised in New Lowell and has lived here his entire life.

His parents were part of the original families (Lamers and Verstraten) that emigrated from Holland after the war, to settle here in the New Lowell area.

John and his wife Donna have been involved in the community over the years. Lamers has served on many committees and was a volunteer firefighter at Station 3, retiring after 25 years of service.

He believes Ward 7 has many opportunities in the coming years, for growth.

"I want people to feel that they can talk to me & I will listen. I will work together with people in my community and as well as with council. I want to ensure that Ward 7 has a voice," said Lamers. "I do believe that Clearview is on the right track and I just want to be part of its future voice. Born here, raised here, went to school here, married here, work here, raised my family here, volunteered here and I will watch my grandchildren grow here, and plan to retire here."

How to Avoid Getting Stuck With Two Homes

The Dilemma

The biggest dilemma when considering purchasing another home is deciding whether to buy first or sell first. Either way is risky because you could end up owning two homes or no home at all. Let's face it, the real estate market has become a tough environment for buyers and sellers alike. The fact is that it's more difficult to get homes sold today and therefore it's essential that real estate agents look for new and innovative ways to meet the demands of the market.

The Solution

A new and innovative program that some agents offer actually guarantees the sale of your home and takes away all of the worry and stress associated with selling and buying another home.

To get a free report on how this program can benefit you, call toll free 1-800-611-8516 and enter 1022 for a recorded message or call inactive cemeteries, and this cemetery received $2,000 from that fund.

"It's just a drop in the bucket."

Cooper-Wilson said the preservation has been a very expensive undertaking.

The dedication will begin on August 18 at 11 a.m. at the Old Zion Presbyterian Cemetery at 6130 Highway 26, Stayner.

As parking will only be available on the soft shoulder by the side of the highway, Cooper-Wilson asks that members of the community use extreme caution when parking. She also says members of the community should bring lawn chairs, as seating is limited.

On August 18, a candlelight service will be held at 2249 Creemore Ave. at the Bethel Union Pioneer Cemetery.

This service will also be about the Old Zion Presbyterian Cemetery project and will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Cooper-Wilson said the goal of this service to teach and entertain the community, and honour the ancestors and the community's collective history.

Hillary Dawson, a historian from York University, will be the keynote speaker. Music will be provided by the following: Rob Green, a singer and songwriter; Sara-Dale Hartshorn, a soloist singer; Miller in Tyme, a gospel group; and the Williams and Skerritt family African drum troupe. There will also be highland dancing.

The junior ambassador for the event will be New Lowell's May Black, a championship highland dancer.
