UNITED IN SONG Nottawasaga & Creemore Public School was full of song early this week as the students celebrated Music Monday, a province-wide event organized annually by the Coalition for Music Education. After a performance by the school band, the entire student body stood together to sing ISS – Is Somebody Singing?, the theme song of the day co-written by Canadian astronaut Chris Hadfield and Ed Robertson of the Barenaked Ladies. Hadfield and Robertson collaborated on the song across 240 vertical miles, with Robertson on Earth and Hadfield on the International Space Station.

So long to the "Mayor of Lavender"

by Brad Holden

Every once in a long while, you meet a truly original character. Jamie Adam, the self-proclaimed Mayor of Lavender who passed away last Saturday after a tragic accident involving one of his beloved antique tractors, was one, without a doubt.

Adam left his native Isle of Man in the mid-1960s, in his 20s, after the young woman to whom he'd been engaged left him for another man. That incident led him to swear off women – according to his longtime friend Neil Metheral, Adam concluded that "they'll do you no good" – and he lived the rest of his days as a bachelor, sustaining himself instead with history books and the pleasure of putting in a good day's work.

Adam was a cheesemaker by training, but when he arrived in Canada after a trip across the Atlantic

A message from the Medical Centre Board

Expansion work could be underway by July

by Bill Mann

The Creemore Medical Centre expansion is about to reach an important milestone: the sending out of bid tender documents to area contractors, with the June 24th Clearview Council meeting targeted for the announcement of the winning bid. Our fundraising effort has been very successful, with cash received and future commitments coming close to our target, which has recently been revised upwards modestly to reflect our view of current costs. Well over 300 donations have been received from individuals and organizations large and small. Thank you all for your generous support!

In the course of our fundraising, some questions have arisen which deserve a response that everyone can see. The first question related to the project's estimated cost: approximately $450,000 for only 900 square feet of new space on the main floor. It seems like a lot of money per square foot, some said. The basic explanation is that we are doing much more than just adding new space. We will be spending over $90,000 to improve the building's accessibility for handicapped patients, for example, and we are making significant changes to the existing building as well. Our cost estimates have been reviewed by several construction professionals, who found them reasonable for the work being done.

"How much is this costing taxpayers?" was another common question. While the Township staff has been enormously helpful in the planning process, all project and operating costs will be paid out of funds we have raised or through rent paid by future tenants, just the way it has been for more than 25 years with the existing building. Township taxpayers have not been and will not be asked to pay anything toward the expansion.

Med Centre expansion to start soon

We told potential donors that only 25 per cent of Creemore area residents said in our survey that they used current Medical Centre services. This caused people to ask why we were expanding, when no one wanted to use the facility. But our survey also told us emphatically that residents wanted very much to use the doctors in the Centre; sadly, these people had found that the doctors already had full rosters and were not taking new patients. Hence the only way to provide additional physician services is to build space for new ones to move into – which is what our project will do.

Other residents complained that they were promised a doctor 25 years ago, when they gave their donation to the original building fund. Understandably, perhaps, they felt disinclined to give this time. The irony in their reaction to not give now is that providing new space might well provide the medical services they felt they were promised long ago. This expansion is an enabling investment to enhance physician availability.

Why don't the Medical Centre physicians respond to local emergencies, since they are much closer than any hospital? All our doctors, when called in these situations, recommend that the patient go to Emergency at the nearest hospital. Hospitals have a broad range of diagnostic and treatment equipment and tools which a centre like ours simply cannot offer. The patient in these cases needs two things: a quick and well-informed diagnosis and modern, efficient treatments. Hospitals do these things best.

Lastly, we are often asked whether the expansion and new physicians will lead to extended hours – evenings or perhaps weekends, or even a clinic structure. Newly trained doctors come well-trained in the skills required to work in a flexible family health team structure. One way of building their practice quickly would be to offer broader services, including expanded hours. As the Medical Centre Board, we are not in a position to require that this occur, but we will do our best to encourage it. However, in the end it is the individual doctor's decision, since each of them runs his or her own business.

It is exciting and a relief to be near the start of construction. If it can occur by early July (our fond hope!), the project should be largely complete by Christmas. During the construction period, there will be some noise and temporary parking arrangements. We will work hard to keep these inconveniences to a minimum.

What are we getting for all this money? In addition to the space for a new physician, the building's accessibility will be considerably improved. Parking and wide entrances at the front of the building will shorten the walk to the building for everyone, especially those dealing with mobility issues. Push-button doors will eliminate the need for a strong right arm on entry and a stair lift will make descending to the basement both safe and easy.

While discussions are still at a very early stage, we hope to attract a lab to the Centre for, perhaps, a couple of half-days per week. A new large meeting room in the basement will allow us to bring medical specialists to Creemore for patient group meetings, rather than requiring these patients to drive to Collingwood, Wasaga Beach or beyond. It will be a more comfortable building to be in. A lot of positive changes! Thanks again for your support, which makes all these improved services possible.

Regional Tourism Organization 7 (RTO7) announced last Friday that Clearview Township is one of 32 organizations to receive new partnership funding for initiatives to develop tourism across Simcoe, Grey and Bruce Counties.

Clearview received $25,000 in matching funding for the municipal branding exercise that is slated to take place over the next two years. Along with funding, RTO7 will be working in close partnership with municipal staff and the Clearview Economic Development Committee (EDC) to help manage and execute the initiatives.

"We couldn't be more thrilled to be working with RTO7 to develop a new brand for Clearview," stated Councillor Brent Preston, Chair of the Clearview EDC. "With RTO7's experience and expertise in branding and tourism development along with potential support from Simcoe County, the opportunity to create an outstanding product is more than a reality."

RTO7 is one of 13 independent not-for-profit corporations that the Province of Ontario provides approximately $40 million in annual funding to lead tourism planning, marketing and development. The new partnership funding program will consist of $1 million in jointly funded initiatives to development tourism across the region.

The finalization of the funding agreement will take place within the next two weeks and work will begin shortly thereafter on developing the request for proposals for project consultants.

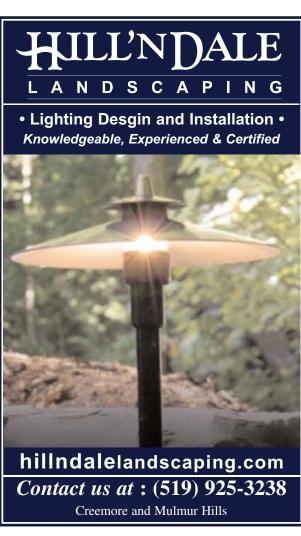

Big Weekend in Singhampton

Lawn mowers, spring flowers, leek pickers, park cleaners – all true signs that the season of growth and rejuvenation is upon us.

The annual volunteer harvest of wild leeks has begun for Singhampton's 29th annual Ramp Romp at the 120-year-old Singhampton Community Centre, taking place this Saturday, May 11 from 4:30 to 7:30 pm.

Volunteerism is also blossoming again in the hamlet's Community Park, where focus has turned from ice rink Zamboniing to ball field grooming. As well, the tenstrong Park Committee has slated this Saturday morning (May 11) for a playground rejuvenation and park cleanup. All are welcome (bring your rakes) to help complete the installation of a new climbing structure. People are gathering at 8 am, and the first 16 who show up will receive a Tim Hortons t-shirt.

Feedback and old photos welcome

LETTER

ARA has many flaws

Dear Editor:

Many people think the mega quarry battle is over, but this is emphatically not the case. Highland has merely withdrawn their application due to the huge public outcry and will undoubtedly apply again when the time is more favourable and they hope the public has grown tired of the issue, at which time we will be faced with the same enormous problems.

The current Aggregate Resources Act (ARA) does not make any sense whatsoever:

- It offers no protection to prime farmland. Canada's vast landmass contains only 0.5 per cent of rare Class 1 farmland, and most of this is in southern Ontario. This precious resource is rapidly disappearing with urbanization and quarrying. The ARA contemplates that the land can be rehabilitated to its former use after the aggregate has been removed, but this seldom if ever happens. For the most part, it is impossible to rehabilitate the land back to its original state. (Highland's claim that the land could be returned to agriculture after blasting down 200 feet below the water table and pumping out 600 million litres of water daily in perpetuity was simply not plausible.) In any event, most quarries are not rehabilitated, and the independent Environmental Commissioner for Ontario estimated that it would take about 300 years to rehabilitate the present quarries.
- -The ARA does not protect our precious water resources. Canada has enormous water resources, but most of it is inaccessible. The possibility of a worldwide shortage of water has become an important issue, and there are many organizations concerned about the conservation of water resources, but the ARA does not address this urgent issue.
- Each time an inappropriate application is made, the public has to raise a huge protest at great expense, time and effort, as was done with the mega quarry proposal and as with the present proposed Walker application to quarry land on the Niagara Escarpment, a UNESCO biosphere reserve, which has recently been reviewed by the Ontario Superior Court with the decision pending.
- The ARA specifies that "need" is not a consideration, thereby allowing aggregate to be exported. (One of the biggest aggregate operations is in Manitoulin Island, and much of that aggregate is exported.)
- One of the effects of allowing "cheap aggregate" to trump all other considerations is that there is no incentive to recycle, thereby using ever more aggregate and dumping the used material in our already overburdened disposal sites. (Canada has a dismal record on recycling aggregates.)
- the final decision regarding approvals is made by the OMB, an unelected and much-criticized body which many have said should be abolished.

It simply does not make sense that there are no clear rules to prohibit quarrying on prime farmland, special UNESCO land, land where such activities would jeopardize the water, or in other situations with profoundly negative effects. It does not make sense that the public in each case must bear the burden of acting in the best interests of the province and its people as well as future generations. Is this not why we have a government?

The Standing Committee that began a review of the ARA before the last election has now agreed to complete their review. No one knows what their recommendations may be or when they will be delivered. We must continue to pressure our representatives to do the right thing – by joining NDACT, putting a "Food & Water First" sign on your lawn or automobile, or whatever else we must do to stop this reckless disregard of the big picture.

Christina Wigle, Creemore

THE WAY WE WERE

Here's another picture from the series of shots brought in by Reg Rawn of the initial Mill Street paving in 1928. This one appears to have the old apartment building on the northeast corner of Mill and Edward Streets in the background. The building was taken down two years ago to make way for the Creemore Springs expansion.

Mulmur mail change makes no sense

Dear Editor:

I am asked by our postal service to change my postal address from Creemore to one out of Shelburne.

This means that my mail will now be delivered by someone who has to travel three times the distance to do so. It also means that I have to travel to Shelburne to pick up packages, spend time to notify everyone of the address change thus changing a system that worked perfectly well to one that does not. I have also learned that the mail deliverers will now be required to wear uniforms, thus further adding to the cost of delivery by a crown corporation already famous for being unable to fund itself.

I have also found out that until I go through the needless tedium and expense of notifying everyone and every business of a change in my address, my mail will continue to be delivered to the Creemore post office where it will sit until a Shelburne postal employee drives to Creemore to pick up the mail, drive it back to the Shelburne post office to then have it delivered back to the Creemore area where I live, all at added expense in time and mileage allowance, and all paid for by taxpayers.

To justify these changes, Canada Post wants rural addresses to include the emergency number as well as the street designation to assist relief deliverers in delivering to the correct address, but that change had already been made some time ago.

I recently became tired of receiving Hydro One bills addressed to my father, now dead since the mid eighties, and asked that bills be addressed to me since I have been paying them all since he died.

Hydro One informed me that I would have to provide a security deposit and that it would cost $125 to make the change. The fact that I have been paying the bill all these years fell on deaf bureaucratic ears. Needless to say that the bills will continue to be mailed to a dead person (who now, if he was still alive, lives in Shelburne, not Creemore).

When I last paid to have my driver's licence renewed, I asked if my personal plates could be replaced since they, like so many other Ontario plates, are degrading to the point of unreadability because they weren't made properly in the first place. This, incidentally, is a problem unique to Ontario. You won't see other provincial or state plates looking like a rusty bucket.

Of course, I was told that it would cost me $125 to replace the plates. When I pointed out to her that it was the government's fault, not mine, that the plates looked like garbage, she told me that it would cost me, not the government, to replace them, and not only that, for a while the licensing bureau couldn't get plates because the convicts who made them "were on vacation."

Don't you get tired of this type of government incompetence? Federal and provincial governments can't balance their books and we are paying the price. I am sick of it. It all seems so mindless.

Creemore Big Heart Seniors

Our attendance was a bit lower than normal today, but we certainly couldn't fault the weather this time.

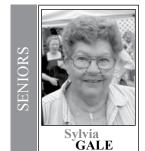

The 50/50 draws went to May Johnston, Peter Gubbels, Phyllis Seed, Pat Broad, Marg Hope, Lillian Hiltz and Audrey Fines.

Moon shots were played by Audrey Tidd (2), Warren Gale, Isabelle Gubbels, Marg Falls, Jim Ferguson and Marcia Cameron. Marcia won the travelling prize, and Warren won the Sidewinder's loot. The big drawback there was that only two Sidewinders – Dave Smith and Roy Veinot – were present to "pay up."

High scorers were Isabelle Gubbels 291, Evelyn Warden 283, Dave Smith 276 and Jim Ferguson 275. Low was Peter Gubbels with 87.

We were happy to have two new players join us today – Mary (Prentiss) Bouchard and John Barber. We hope you folks enjoyed your day, and that you'll join us again.

We were sorry to hear that Beulah Dunn, a member of Seniors for some time, passed away in Collingwood Hospital recently. Our condolences to all Beulah's family, friends and acquaintances.

There were a lot of us away this week, which left a lot of work on fewer shoulders. Our thanks to Barb Cudmore for nipping over to the Legion and setting up the tea and coffee (complete with instructions as to when they needed to be plugged in for Irma) before she left for parts unknown. And thanks to Irma for taking memberships and dues, making sure the tea and coffee were ready for the luncheon, keeping track of info, prizes and moon shots, and paying out the necessary monies, etc, etc. Also our thanks to President Ray Leighton and Vice-President Dave Smith for doing all the other things such as the 50/50 tickets and draws, sorting out the prize score cards, and sorting them out each and every week. I know that, when Bob Veale was president, he spent many an hour sorting us out (card wise, that is!) This is a function that Dave now handles. We have a great crew that just steps in and does whatever needs doing at any given time, and they are all great folks to work with.

Our thanks to Wilma Zeggil for bringing in goodies for our candy stash. They are always appreciated.

I was away today as daughter Laurie landed for a whirlwind visit from Calgary, and also because I have been bedevilled by a very tenacious infection in my lungs, which interferes (big time) with my breathing apparatus.

There was a pretty small crew that met at Avening Hall last Sunday to discuss ideas on raising money for the hall. There was a quite a bit of enthusiasm among some of the younger attendees, and I did hear some sound ideas that seemed worthy of trying. So hopefully, there will be more get-togethers where some of the planning stage items come to fruition. One thing I did discover was that Jenna Kessler and Paul Bains are planning on opening a market garden on the corner of Airport Road and County Road 17 in Mansfield. This will be open on Friday and Saturday nights over the summer, and should attract quite a few customers, judging by the amount of traffic that travels the Airport Road during the year and that increases during the summer

Grandson Curtis arrived recently, and it's great to see him – if only in short spells. We'll take any time we can get with them (the grandkids). Then, on the marvel of a thing called a cell phone, we got to see our brand new great grandgirl Isabella Paige – daughter of Ryan and Carolyn Shier, who live way north in Alberta in a town called Wabaska.

We "ran into" Marion Abbey up in Collingwood this week and heard from her the sad news that Jamie Adam's tractor (those machines he was such a booster of) had went through the thresh floor of his barn and he and the tractor had came down through to the ground floor, which had killed Jamie. Jamie will be remembered as the founding father of the vintage tractor drive through the hills and dales, ending up back at Dunedin Hall for supper. Our sincere condolences to Jamie's family and friends on this untimely loss.

Our president, Ray Leighton, underwent surgery in Collingwood Hospital recently. He was sent home, but his daughter-in-law Marilyn, who is a nurse, came up and stayed with Ray for the first night or two, which was very helpful of her. So best wishes go out to you, Ray, from us all, and hope you have a quick recovery.

POSITIVE MENTAL HEALTH The entire Stayner Collegiate Insititute student body spent part of Wednesday morning walking laps of the school track in support of World Child and Youth Mental Health Day. Prior to the walk, students attended an assembly and heard a moving speech by 40-year-old Stayner resident Corey Jenkins, who told them of his 27-year battle with depression, low self esteem and drug and alcohol addiction. Students were urged to talk about mental health issues, and to seek help if they were experiencing depression themselves.

on the Queen Mary, he found it hard to get work in that field. He gravitated to agricultural work, first on a chicken farm outside Toronto and eventually on a sheep farm in Bond Head, where he first met Neil Metheral.

He eventually travelled to this area with a friend from back home, Jim Lindsay, and the two men started running a fledgling lamb operation near Lavender. When that venture didn't fly, Adam built a snowblower out of an old army truck. He spent the winters blowing snow and the harvest season swathing hay and grain. He spent many years working for the Metherals and put in a fair amount of time for the Giffens in Glen Huron as well.

"Anybody that needed him, he was there to help you," said Metheral.

In 1972, Adam bought his house on the Lavender corner, and soon became a fixture in that community. His raised voice and hearty laugh could be heard far and wide, and he spent his downtime tinkering with old David Brown tractors and reading history books in his library.

"He was quite a man to read," remembered Metheral. "He could set you straight about a lot of things – wars, politics, anything to do with history."

Adam was also devoted to his community. He was an avid supporter of the Dunedin Hall, he sat on the last Nottawasaga Township Council and the first Clearview Township Council, and he was a longtime volunteer with the Collingwood Fair Board. He was happiest on Education Day at the fair, when waves of Grade 3 and 7 students would pass through the tractor exhibit and listen to a yarn or two about the old times.

His passion for tractors led him to create one of this area's marquee events. Every July for the past six years, antique tractor enthusiasts from all over southern Ontario have gathered at the Dunedin Park, setting out on a day-long trek around the back roads and over the far flung fields of Clearview Township. Adam was always at the front of the line, in his element, with a cigarette between his lips and a wide smile on his face.

"He had a real love for the old tractors, and in the end that's what ended up gettin' him," said Metheral.

Last Friday afternoon, Adam was charging up one of his David Browns on the threshing floor of his little bank barn in Lavender. When he stood beside the machine to start it up, the tractor happened to be in gear. It lurched forward, taking Adam with it as it fell through to the ground floor. When a passing driver noticed him lying there and called Audrey and Harold Davidson, Adam's longtime neighbours, over to investigate, Adam's only request was for Audrey to retrieve his cigarettes and fetch him some matches. A lifelong smoker, Adam used to laughingly respond to people urging him to quit by asking,"How else do you expect me to get a rest?"

After a final smoke, an ambulance took Adam to the General & Marine Hospital. He was later taken to St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto, where he passed away on Saturday night. He was 75, and had no family in Canada.

Adam's ashes are to be taken back to the Isle of Man, where they will be scattered on Snaefell Mountain, home of the International Isle of Man TT motorcycle race, an event Adam was fond of spinning tales about. A local celebration of his life will correspond with this year's Tractor Rally on Saturday, July 20.

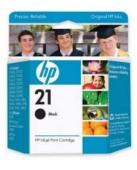

"We're going to start out in Dunedin and dribble our way towards the Fairgrounds," said Metheral. "When we get there we're going to all enjoy each other for a while, and have a little memorial. Jamie would have wanted us to have fun, so that's what we'll do."

A place to dance your Big Heart out

by Brad Holden

For the past four years, something magical has been happening in the Pine River valley every June.

Big Heart Dance Camp, celebrating its fifth anniversary this year from June 19 to 23, is a multi-faceted, intergenerational get-together that founder Ayrlie MacEachern has modeled after Dance New England. MacEachern first travelled to that 30-year-old institution, which draws hundreds every summer, in her late 20s, and was struck by the openness and creativity she saw there.

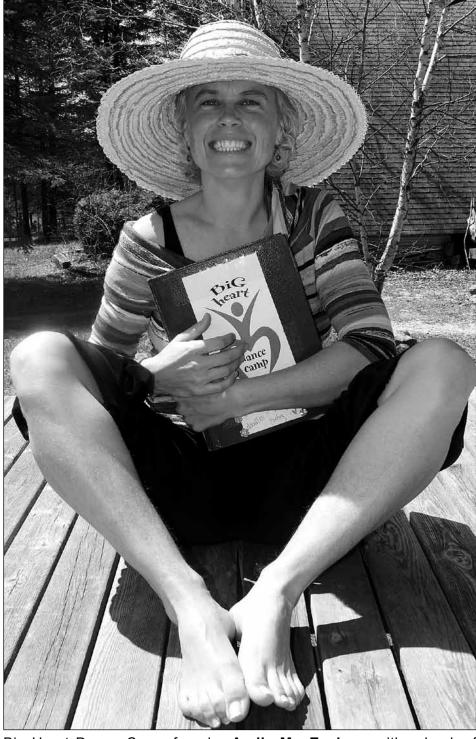

Big Heart Dance Camp, which takes place on the Unicamp property in Mulmur Township, had over 70 attendees last year. Guests can come for one day or all five, and a variety of workshops - from yoga to rattlemaking to barefoot boogieing, with all manners of body movement in between are available each day.

"People can attend four workshops in a day or none," explained MacEachern. "The vibe is all about everyone creating their own unique experiences. You might just get into a good conversation at breakfast, and still be sitting at the table at lunch."

Speaking of breakfast and lunch, the entire five days are catered by a vegetarian chef friend of MacEachern's, and the food is an attraction itself.

Local resident Kathy McCleary attended the camp last year for the first time, and was so impressed that she's heading back this year. "It was a great mix of people, from small children upward, and everyone was in a relaxed mood," she said.

Another local resident, Julia Petrisor, fell enough in love with Big Heart Dance Camp to join ranks with MacEachern, and this year has taken on some of the organizational load. With the help of a Robert G. Kemp Award from the Blue Mountain Foundation of the Arts, MacEachern and Petrisor are ready to make this year's camp bigger

"As far as I know, there is nothing else like this in all of Ontario," said MacEachern. "We're creating a community around this camp, and it's happening in a really beautiful way."

FEATHERED FRIENDS Members of the senior class at Hummingbird Montessori had a visit from someone with a fairly unique skill last week. Jim Chapel is a licensed bird bander who is able to catch birds with the help of a mist net. Suspended between two poles and resembling an oversized volleyball net, mist nets are virtually invisible to birds and gently catch them hammock-style when they fly into them. Chapel caught this house finch, allowing everyone a good look at the animal before letting it go. A furry approach to improving reading skills

Students at Nottawasaga & Creemore Public School who need a little help with their reading have been receiving visits from a couple of canines who differ in size but not in empathy.

Rita Madill has been bringing Cody, her Shih Tzu-Poodle mix to the school for a couple of years now, and last fall Colleen Stamp started visiting with Bronson, one of her massive Leonbergers. The two women volunteer for Therapeutic Paws of Canada, an organization that organizes dog and cat visits in hospitals, nursing homes and schools.

If anyone has a cat or dog with a calm demeanor and would like to volunteer for the organization, the local contact to arrange a pet evaluation is Sue Hillerby at 705-445-1316. Pets and handlers must volunteer a certain amount of time in hospitals and nursing homes before being approved to work in schools.

HARD AT WORK The Ray's Place Auto Restoration Club is making progress on its 1951 Ford F1 pickup, with eight members aged 13 to 17 meeting once a week with group leader Corey Finkelstein and several members of the community at large helping out. So far, the club has dismantled the body, exhaust system, starter and generator. The windows and rubber seals have been removed and the plan is to pull the engine and transmission to fix some leaky seals before reassembling things. The car has been moved from Caroline Street to Betty McLeod's garage on County Road 9, and the body work has been done at Clearview Custom and Collision. The club is in need of several things, and would welcome donations of the following: a metric/imperial set of regular and impact sockets, wrenches, a torque wrench, and any 1951 Ford F1 parts in good shape (specifically an exhaust manifold and a flywheel for a 1950s flathead V8 engine). Cash donations are also welcome to cover replacement parts required for restoration. Ray's Place is a charitable organization and can issue tax receipts for donations. For more information, to donate, to join the club or to volunteer your time, call Finkelstein at 705-520-0110.

Good ideas help our world become a better place

NCPS Grade 8 student Obi Page's speechmaking run ended last weekend at the Ontario/Quebec finals of the Lions Club's Effective Speaking Competition in St. Catharines. We'd like to congratulate Obi on such a great run, and present his speech here for those who are curious.

Have you ever asked yourself what life would be like without the number zero? Sports teams would always start their game with one point each. Cars would never stop. They would always have to travel one kilometre per hour. You would never run out of jelly beans.

Believe it or not, the number zero was an idea invented by someone over two thousand years ago. But it didn't come to Western society until 800 years ago.

Honourable judges, teachers and fellow students – have you ever had a really great idea? Would it change the world?

Ideas can change the world by the evolution and revolution of technology and knowledge. Good ideas help our world become a better place. Bad ideas may cause damage.

Ideas affect our lives every day. Teachers spend six hours a day showing us new ideas. The things we use to learn

- pencils, paper, desks and computers were originally someone's idea. In fact, almost everything we see around us started out as one.

Big ideas can change the world by leading to discoveries like the earth travelling around the sun or inventions like the wheel, but sometimes the ideas themselves can change the world. The notion of democracy arose in ancient Greece 2,500 years ago. It was used as a way to give power to a special or elite group of people making them all equal. Today, democracy makes all people equal and also allows us to change our government without needing a revolution. Ironically though, most modern democracies begin with a violent revolution

Most ideas simply don't come out of nowhere. They are often built upon other ideas. A great example of this is something I love, computer gaming. The first computer game ever invented was Space Wars! It was programmed to run on the PDP-1, a large computer built in 1959. It used an IBM typewriter for input. The typewriter was invented in the 1860s, 100 years before the PDP-1. Typewriters use a lever to transform a keystroke into a mark on a piece of paper. Levers originated in the 3rd Century BC. Idea built on idea built on idea.

Think of other simple ideas from long ago that have changed the world. Where would we be without electricity, the printing press or even indoor plumbing?

Ideas can help people where they really need it. Often the best ideas are incredibly simple and use tools and materials that already exist. When we turn the fountain on we expect to find clean water to drink. But finding clean drinking water can be a huge problem in other parts of the world. Water often has bacteria and parasites. Biosand Filtering, a concept from Canada, helps people in developing countries obtain clean water by pouring contaminated water through sand, the most common material in the world. This greatly benefits developing countries because it is inexpensive, easy to maintain and simple to use. A great

Canadians have had some of the world's best ideas. Think of the telephone, the snowmobile and the Blackberry.

Sometimes ideas are just too radical for their time. We may have a very hard time agreeing with other people's ideas and things change slowly. Galileo was a scientist in the 1500s. He spent the last 30 years of his life under house arrest, because he supported the idea that the earth travelled around the sun. Today we take his viewpoint completely for granted. It only took a few hundred years.

Ideas are powerful things that can change the world for better or worse. Because of this they can be more disruptive than a nuclear bomb or more valuable than a billion dollars. In the words of Oscar Wilde, "An idea that is not dangerous is unworthy of being called an idea at all." So what is your idea?

You'll get a warm welcome and cold beer.

Jammin' Til the Jam is Through...

With the advent of a bona fide spring (at very long last) we have been out and about in the great outdoors as much as it's possible to do. Despite the fact we seem to have gone from winter right into black fly season, Stephen and I remain undeterred in our walk-to-get-fit regime. We did take a nice break to enjoy ourselves with an anniversary dinner at Chez Michel. It's such a lovely place to celebrate special occasions, although you don't need any particular reason to go there for a delicious meal. We finished off with a delightful stroll through Creemore, checking out all the trees starting to bud and flowers starting to appear in everyone's garden.

It's time for me to bring out the warm-weather recipes, put on a few good tunes and get barbequing! This recipe started as a hunt through my pantry cupboard for a new jar of dill pickles. In order to get to the pickles, I had to fight my way through all the bottles and pots of jam we seem to collect - an occupational hazard when you run a B&B. Gazing at three jars of seedless raspberry jam, I started thinking what I might do with some of it to clear up some space, and forgot all about the dill pickles. In fact, dill pickles do not factor into this recipe at all. What did

I need them for anyway? I forgot. Does this ever happen to you?

I digress. Back to the raspberry jam. Rather than going for the usual dessert-like cake/squares/bars approach, I opted to create a barbeque marinade. Sweet and hot is one of my favourite taste combinations. The sugary taste of the jam is blended with the hotness of fresh chile pepper and Sriracha sauce, finished off with a tart boost from the rice vinegar. You can add as much or as little heat to this marinade as you like. I love barbeque marinades because they increase the juiciness of the meat, especially when used for such a lean cut as pork loin.

So what started as the great Avalon dill pickle hunt ended up going in an entirely different culinary direction. To paraphrase the immortal Bob Marley, I was "Jammin' til the jam is through..." Now what else can I make with the rest of that raspberry jam? And where are those dill pickles anyway?

Whether there's a big barbeque planned to celebrate this weekend, or all the special ladies in your lives are being treated to dinner out, I wish everyone a very happy Mother's Day!

Feedback is great and I would love to hear from you. You can email me at elaine@avalonclearview.com.

Until next time, eat well, live well....

Jammin' Sweet & Sizzling Pork Chops

Serves 6

6 boneless pork loin chops

4 cloves of garlic, very finely chopped

1 1/2 tablespoons fresh ginger, very finely chopped

1 Thai red chile pepper, very finely chopped

1 teaspoon Sriracha chili sauce

1/2 cup seedless raspberry jam

1 tablespoon soy sauce

2 tablespoons rice wine vinegar

1 tablespoon sesame oil

1 tablespoon canola oil

Blue Mountain Resorts

Juice and zest from 1/2 a fresh orange

In a small mixing bowl, add all the ingredients for the marinade and stir well. Place loin chops in a large Ziploc freezer bag and pour marinade over top. Seal the bag and massage marinade into the chops. Refrigerate for 2 to 3 hours.

About 30 minutes before serving, pre-heat barbeque to 375°. Remove chops from marinade and pour marinade into a small saucepan. Barbeque chops until cooked through, about 10 minutes. While chops are on the barbeque, heat the marinade to boiling, stirring often so it doesn't burn*. Reduce heat to simmer and let marinade reduce into a thick sauce. When chops are done, let them rest on a plate covered in aluminum foil for 5 minutes. Drizzle sauce over top of chops and serve.

* Ensure the marinade is well cooked – remember, it has raw pork juices in it when you start!

Our sincere gratitude to all our silent auction donors listed below and to all those who bid on the items. We had another successful year thanks to you.

Power in the Pine River valley

Each Saturday morning a group of local hikers, of which I am a member, may be seen leaving Creemore. Several times a year they head towards Mulmur Township to explore various parts of the Bruce Trail. One popular spot is just west of the tiny community of Kilgorie. The trail follows the Pine River and there, sitting at the edge of the river in the bush, is an abandoned building with no road access. What could explain it?

The following article from the August 8, 1974 Creemore Star, written by Nancy Horney, explains that it was built by the Dufferin Light and Power Company for the purposes of generating electricity. The article also provides additional Mulmur history.

"The Pine River, as it flows through Dufferin and Simcoe Counties on its way to the Nottawasaga and Georgian Bay, has an illustrious history dating back to the 1820s. Within Mulmur Township in the County of Dufferin, on the Niagara Escarpment, the Ministry of Natural Resources acquired 190 acres of the Pine River Valley in 1971. Parts of this property were first acquired from the Crown in 1836, 1839 and 1874. Most of the land remained dormant during the years when the surrounding townships were settled. Though Mulmur's settlements date back to 1828, only a portion of the area was cleared in the 1800s. The rest of the property remained carpeted with virgin timber until the Dufferin Light and Power

Helen BLACKBURN

Company began clearing the area while constructing a power dam. The Pine River area lies within timberland once known as the 'Queen's Bush.'

"Transportation played an important part in the development of the area in pioneer days. In 1860, the survey of the Prince of Wales Road ran straight through the fishing area. The centre road or Huron-Ontario Street, connecting Port Credit and Collingwood, runs along the eastern border of the property. The Pine River Road was cut out of the bush to link Horning's Mills and Kilgorie. Although the present roadway is not paved [it is in 2013], it is not the original road. The first road was of corduroy logs. Previously a logging trail had followed an old Indian trail along the north bank of the Pine. It was the power project which necessitated the construction of a new road in 1910.

"By the late 1870s agriculture in the Shelburne/Horning's Mills/Honeywood area was increasing in importance. The Pine River was envisioned as early as 1895 as a potential source of power for the new era of electric farming by James Huxtable. But it was not until 1906 that proposals were placed before Shelburne Town Council for a hydro-electric power project. Tom Huxtable bought the river rights and adjoining lands in lots 14 and 15 of the 1st and 2nd concessions West in Mulmur Township for a total of $1,337.51. Today this property is valued at almost 100 times that.

"From 1917 to 1971 the Pine River property was utilized mainly for its recreational value and changed ownership many times. In 1971 the Ministry of Natural Resources acquired the property for a Provincial Fishing Area. Now the main feature here is fishing. The Pine River Provincial Fishing Area is stocked with rainbow trout by the Ministry. Fishing is not the only attraction as the surrounding countryside is picturesque, beautiful for a hike or just to take advantage of the quietness and serenity."

Theatre Collingwood kicks off fundraising campaign

With the summer theatre season just around the corner, Theatre Collingwood is announcing the launch of its Renaissance Campaign as part of their annual fundraising initiatives. Funds raised though the Renaissance Campaign will enable Theatre Collingwood to bring the magic of theatre to life while keeping ticket prices affordable for all theatre-goers.

"Fifty-three percent of our revenue comes from tickets sales and grants," said Deb Piggott, Development Manager for the theatre. "The remainder must come from our supporters. It is through our annual fundraising efforts and the generosity of members and sponsors that our theatre dreams become a reality. That is why our Renaissance Campaign is so vital to our success."

"We are really excited about our upcoming season," said Harold Bickerstaff, Board Chair for Theatre Collingwood. "And we are looking forward to a strong and exciting playbill. To meet what the community told us they would like to see, we are offering five incredible plays this summer. We will also be showcasing a number of one-night-only performances throughout the year, helping us to realize our goal of becoming a year-round theatre. To make this happen, we are calling on theatre lovers everywhere to support our Renaissance Campaign."

Theatre Collingwood needs to raise over $50,000 through its Renaissance Campaign this year. There are many benefits to becoming a Renaissance member as an individual or as a business. These include logo recognition, advertising, website acknowledgements, two season subscriptions, membership newsletter, tax receipts, etc. It is also a great way to meet other theatre-goers. In addition, Renaissance donors will see their name on a Wall of Honour, which will be unveiled later in the season.

Contact Deb Piggott at 705-445-2200 or deb.piggott@theatrecollingwood.ca for more information or to obtain a brochure outlining the benefits on the Renaissance Campaign.

New Lowell News

Well, it looks like spring is here to stay. Now we have to contend with the pesky black flies and mosquitoes. Happy gardening or walking around the village.

The congregation at New Lowell United Church bid a fond farewell to Jim and Myrna Templeton as they prepare to move to their new home in New Brunswick. Jim and Myrna have given much to our community in the last 50 years. They were some of the first members of Winterama, were entrepreneurs for Shady Woods, participated in all the business and worship services at the church plus they raised their family in the community. Rick and Diane will have to make trips to the east coast to visit with Mom and Dad. We treasure all that they have done and wish them well in their new home. God Bless!

The family of the late Marjorie Gordon invite you to a Celebration Tea of her life on Saturday, May 11 at 2 pm at Centennial United Church in Stayner.

On Saturday, May 25 the New Lowell community will be a busy place. On Saturday morning from 8 am till noon the public school will be having a metal waste collection. If you need to know what to drop off please contact the school. They do have contact people that will pick up your metal if you can't get to the school. After dropping off your metal, come next door to the Giant Yard Sale at the New Lowell United Church. You can rent a table there for $10. Please call Deanna at 424-0432. Now you might be very hungry by this time, so venture into the Church Hall and you can have a cup of tea as they celebrate our community heritage. There will be memorabilia and nice hot tea with goodies, all for $5. There will also be a delicious bake table with homemade baking. The end of a perfect day within your community.

The primary children at New Lowell Public School were performing on stage for family and friends on Thursday, as they recited poems that they had written or learned from famous poets. It was a delightful Poetry Cafe.

Mother's Day is fast approaching and to help you with plans to honour mom, come to the New Lowell Legion for their Annual Mother's Day breakfast. Then, on Saturday, June 8, get your Western duds on and go to the Legion for a special Steak Dinner with all the trimmings for $10. Call the Legion for tickets.

By now with all the press printing articles plus the large thermometer outside the church you know that the congregation of New Lowell United is committed to an addition to make the building "Accessible for All." This is a huge commitment and they are having a special evening of music on June 1 starting at 7 pm. The Canadian Elvis Champion (and second-place finisher in Memphis) Anthony Von and his band will perform at the Legion. This evening of music, dancing and singing will be the highlight of June in our village. The tickets are only $35 including a light lunch. There will be a cash bar. Please call Marilyn at 424-1032 for tickets or talk to any church member. Don't leave it to the last minute as Anthony Von is well-known, especially in this area from the Elvis Festival in Collingwood. Put on your blue suede shows and come on down!!

Sympathy of the community goes out to Laura and Tom Macham as they have lost a sister-in-law and a step-mother in the last three weeks. We have the Macham family in our thoughts and prayers.

That's the news from in and around New Lowell. If you have something to share from your community please call Sandra at 424-6497 or email sandra@bednarek.ca.

Marlyn Donald Shaw Born March 8, 1935

Passed peacefully January 14, 2013.

A lifelong resident of Creemore, Ontario. A proud, stubborn, spirited man who ultimately became trapped in an unco-operative body. Survived by sister Marion Hester, predeceased by Willow Barnett, Verlyn Robinson & Wildred Shaw. Marlyn took great joy in his trips out west, great pride in cutting grass, delivering papers, fixing bikes, driving his car, great joy in grabbing a bite to eat uptown, late, late night TV – never one to be seen in the morning. Always with a twinkle in his eye especially for the ladies, a joke on his lips followed by a great belly laugh and a cough. A graveside memorial is being held Tuesday, May 14, 2013 at 11:30 am at Creemore Union Cemetery followed by light refreshments at St. Luke's Anglican Church. Arrangements entrusted to Fawcett Funeral Home -Creemore Chapel.

MAD & NOISY CREATIVITY Lynn Mokriy (in the purple, near left) showed off many of her quilt creations as the keynote speaker at last week's annual Mad & Noisy Quilter's Dessert Tea at the Creemore Legion. Members of the quilting group also displayed quilts in the theme of "Jackie's Stars," in honour of member Jaclyn Fowler, who passed away last year.

Supporting Farming Families in Dufferin County

The Dufferin Wind Farm project was started by members of this community to help sustain local farming and support our community through the generation of clean, renewable energy.

Over its lifetime, the Dufferin Wind Farm will contribute millions of dollars to the local community through land leases, property taxes, construction and operating activities. The project will be an important source of income for the community and will help us keep our farming way of life that we, and our families before us, have worked so hard to preserve.

Farm Owned Power Melancthon

We want to thank all of the members of the community who have come to visit us in our project office and for their ongoing support and encouragement. We are looking forward to building a project that we can all be proud of and that helps our community.

We are Proud to be part of a Community that has shown Leadership in Renewable Energy Production
