“Intolerable” author helps My Friend’s House

Kamal Al-Solaylee

by Brad Holden

Collingwood women’s shelter My Friend’s House will hold its second annual Creemore fundraiser at the Station on the Green on Saturday, September 14.

While last year’s inaugural event featured local playwright Dan Needles as the keynote speaker, this year the spotlight will be on Kamal Al-Solaylee, a Canadian journalist who published Intolerable: A Memoir of Extremes in 2012.

Recalling a childhood spent in Beirut, Egypt and Yemen and shedding light on the politics and culture of a complex part of the world, Intolerable is at its root the story of what its like to grow up as a gay person in an intolerant society.

The book also touches on the status of women in the Middle East, a subject that dovetails quite nicely with the My Friend’s House cause.

“In the Middle East society takes one step forward and two steps back,” said Al-Solaylee. “The advent of the Internet and social media in the last two decades made many people in the Arab world realize that life in fear and under political dictatorship is no longer an option. Women were among those marching in Tahrir Square in Cairo in 2011 demanding more rights and freedoms. But their protest was coupled with an increase in sexual assaults and violence against women. And so it continues.”

Despite the vital importance of the services that My Friend’s House provides to Collingwood, Wasaga Beach, The Blue Mountains and Clearview Township, the organization operates each year with a funding shortfall of $170,000. That money is raised by volunteer fundraisers, who must get creative with their efforts.

The Creemore area has always been generous, said My Friend’s House executive director Alison FitzGerald. Last year’s Station on the Green event was a big success, and it’s hoped that this year will bring in even more funds. “It’s about awareness as well,” she said. “Events like these introduce My Friend’s House to a different demographic, and violence toward women extends across all demographics. So yes, we need the financial support, but we also want to get the word out.”

My Friend’s House board member Kathy Simpson and volunteer Fran Breithaupt, both from Creemore, are hard at work organizing a live auction that will also play a large part of the Creemore event.

Tickets for the September 14 event are $30 and are available at Curiosity House or at ticketscene.ca.

Artisans invited to participate in Arts Fest Fair

This year’s Creemore Festival of the Arts is fast approaching. In its second year, the Festival continues to evolve and has taken the opportunity provided by its infancy to take major steps to enhance the event by adding more ways for local artists and attendees to engage the weekend of October 4 to 6.

Just one of the additions to this year’s festival, which includes a juried art show, sculpture garden, artists on location, concerts, kids’ activities and interactive dance programs, is an Artisans’ Fair to take place at the Creemore Legion, on Saturday, October 5. The show, which hopes to feature about 40 craft people, will have a similar feel to Creemore’s Farmers’ Market and even some familiar market faces. It will showcase well known local handcrafted soaps and candles, crocheted creatures and fibre art as well as feature other artisans including painters, jewellery makers, photographers and woodworkers.

“Craft shows can be a treasure trove of new and unique artists, especially in an area as rich in the arts as this one is,” says Jenn Jansen, the Fair’s coordinator. And while all forms of art will be on display throughout the area during the Festival the Legion will provide a dedicated venue for multiple artisans, making it convenient for the public to see and enjoy a wide variety of work in one location and perhaps even get a jump on holiday shopping.

Jansen is still seeking artisans to participant on October 5 and thinks there is real value in being part of an established, art-focused weekend, “From a vendor’s perspective, this inaugural show has the benefit of being affiliated with a festival that is already successfully in place and a popular tourist destination. Having been a vendor at many a craft show myself, the ones where crickets echo down the aisles because the events was never advertised are the absolute worst. This promises to be better from the get-go.”

If you’re interested in vending the Artisans’ Fair, please visit the Purple Hills Arts and Heritage Society website at www.phahs.ca or contact Jenn Jansen at Fromthebluehouse@gmail.com

LETTER

Power Options?

This is a partial response to the letter last week, opposing wind turbines. There were several questions and since I left the paper behind I can only remember the gist of a couple. Subsidies? The writer was concerned that the wind energy people were getting subsidies. Who isn't? Hydro, nuclear, solar – even the road crews and senior centres get money from the government. We pay taxes so we can have the goods and services that we need.

Another concern was birds dying when they hit the towers. Likely some do, however many more birds die because they run into the windows in apartment and office buildings. There are few windows in a wind tower. Should we ban office towers?

For me the bigger picture is a question of the options. The public wants electricity. Coal fired plants are filthy. Nuclear is unsafe – check Chernobyl or Fukushima. Water, wind and solar have low operational costs, and are far more environmentally friendly. Personally I would rather have a windmill than a nuclear plant on my farm.

Let's encourage the government to put money and jobs into renewable energy production.

Glen Eagle, Creemore

Creemore Big Heart Seniors

There were 46 out for cards today, and Barb Cudmore wrote down the day's activities until mid afternoon, and then Barb Pilon took over. She regaled everyone with a joke, and kept track of all goings on for the rest of the day. Thanks, gals!

The 50/50 prizes went to June Hartley, Barb Cudmore, Ruby Klinck, Effie Taylor, Wilma Bannerman, Norma Johnston and Pat Winger.

Moon shots were played by John Van Voorst (2), Ray Leighton, Marg Falls, Jim Ferguson, Pat Winger, Isabelle Gubbels, Peter Gubbels, Marg Hope and Dave

SENIORS

Sylvia
GALE

Smith (3), with one of them being in the last hand. Dave won the travelling prize and the Sidewinders money – but Bob Veale was the only one there to pay Dave!

High scorers were Dave Smith 292, May Johnston 250, Wilma Zeggil and Janice Stephens tied with 249. Low was Brian McGill with 55. What happened to you, Brian? This is not your usual spot!

It's nice to see the Creemore Legion Ladies Auxiliary Friday night suppers are starting again. They are always enjoyable, as are the folks you meet at them. The food is good and the price is reasonable, and all served with a smile.

It will soon be Brad's last day at the paper. I for one will miss his always helpful advice and his pleasant smile, which is a trademark of all the Creemore Echo staff. But I'm sure the new Editor, Kristi Green, will fit right in – and it saves all of us from going down to the US of A and kidnapping Craig and Barbara Simpson and bringing them back to Creemore! At any rate, I have appointment(s) at Barrie Hospital on September 13th – and they seem to have been timed to bug up our getting in to the “Come and Go Tea”, but we will see how our timing works out as I would like to take part in the Echo's Meet and Greet - but we will be sorry to see Brad leaving. But it is for all the best reasons, and this will make quite a difference in his life. And a note to Kristi – if it turns out that we cannot make the tea, then welcome to Creemore (a suburb of Avening!) and we will pop in to meet you as soon as we can to say “Welcome”.

I have been turning in a “shortened” Seniors News lately. Hopefully I will soon be feeling able to throw in my two cents worth again.

CELEBRATING AN AMAZING AFRICAN ADVENTURE

by Brad Holden

Part-time Dunedin resident Lynn Connell's African story has been well-documented over the years in the Creemore Echo, and for good reason – what Connell and a dedicated group of fellow volunteers have accomplished with the Majengo Children's Home in Mto Wa Mbu, Tanzania has been nothing short of miraculous, and very little of it could have happened without the significant amount of support Connell has received from the Creemore community.

On Sunday, September 22 from 2 to 5 pm, Connell will host a Majengo party at her Creativity Art Retreat in Dunedin, and she's hoping that all who have played a part in the story, as well as any inspired to become involved, will join her in celebrating her African successes.

To recap what's happened to date: Connell first travelled to Tanzania in 2008 to teach art to HIV/AIDS sufferers with ICA Canada, a non-governmental organization that works to better the lives of vulnerable people throughout Africa. Following that experience, she was so enthralled with the country that she volunteered at an orphanage, an experience that turned traumatic when she discovered the level of corruption surrounding orphanages in Tanzania, many of which are set up near tourist areas as a means of extorting sympathetic money from western visitors.

Upset but wanting to do something about the situation, Connell was taken by an ICA Tanzania worker named Charles Luoga to the Home Comfort Orphanage, a squalid, mud-floored building that was home to 52 children. The conditions at Home Comfort were so bad, it had been refused official orphanage status by the Tanzanian government – even though the official orphanages were little more than tourist money traps.

Luoga told Connell that someone was willing to rent their house to Home Comfort so that the orphans could be kept in better conditions, but that an investment would be required. So Connell returned home and raised $23,000, much of it from donors in the Creemore/Dunedin area.

The children were moved, the orphanage was renamed Majengo, the name of the agricultural community where the new house was located, and Connell and her growing team of volunteers never looked back.

With the help of two American families who have performed some major fundraising in their own hometowns, Connell has been able to raise $100,000 per year in operating costs and an additional $130,000 to build three new residences and a dining hall on 10 acres gifted to Majengo by the local government. Last September, the Majengo kids – now 72 of them – moved in. In addition, the orphanage supports 56 more children who live out in the community, attending public school. All of the children range in age from 3 to 14.

"It's been an amazing adventure all the way through," said Connell last week. "And it's been a truly collective effort."

The adventure, as Connell accurately refers to it, continues. In addition to ongoing operating costs, Connell and her partners are now determined to raise a further $80,000 to build a soccer field, a playground and a resource library on the Majengo property. These assets would be available to the wider community as well as the Majengo children.

The library has Connell particularly excited. In a country where a lack of access to education is the main factor contributing to systemic poverty, the chance to provide a place where children and adults alike can study English and access information is a tantalizing prospect.

The Majengo project is not without other financial stressors as well, especially given its focus on education. As the children progress into their teen years, they will be faced with the fact that high school education costs money in Tanzania – about $650 per year per student. In addition to the aforementioned fundraising, Connell, said, her team is always on the lookout for people who would like to sponsor secondary students.

"The nice thing about us is that none of the administrators are getting paid," she said. "All of the money that's donated goes directly to real operating costs and the real cost of students' educations."

The 18 staff on site are under the direct supervision of Luoga and are handpicked for their professionalism. Connell and her two American partners are hands-on involved as well – her most recent trip involved painting the new residences by hand as part of her duties – so local corruption is not an issue.

"We're really like one big happy family over there," she said.

It's hoped that Luoga will be in Canada and in attendance at the September 22 party, so attendees will have a chance to talk directly with the man in charge in Africa.

"It will be a celebration and a catchup," said Connell. "Of course, we might be doing a little fundraising as well!"

For more information about Majengo, visit majengo.org or Connell's personal Majengo blog at lynnconnell.blogspot.ca.

As an aside, American artist Douglas Walton was attending Connell's Creativity Art Retreat in Dunedin two weeks ago and, upon receiving an update on her Majengo activities, announced that he'd be putting her name forward for the 2014 CNN Heroes Project, an initiative by the US broadcaster that aims to highlight ordinary people who have accomplished extraordinary things. The other attendees at that week's retreat announced that they'd be putting in nominations for her as well. Connell is uncomfortable with the prospect, pointing out that she's just one of many who have contributed to Majengo's success, but she also realizes that such exposure would be great for the organization. If you'd like to put Connell's name forward as well, you can do so at cnn.com/specials/cnn.heroes.

SENIORS INVITED TO GET ACTIVE – THEIR WAY

by Brad Holden

A new Creemore resident is hoping to use her education and expertise to help area seniors gain access to services they may be having a hard time receiving now.

Karen Shannon is a graduate of Sheridan College's Activation Co-ordinator and Gerontology program, and spent time working at Belmont House, the well-known Toronto nursing and retirement home, before moving to Creemore.

Now, she's hoping to gauge the community to find out what kinds of seniors services might be needed. On Monday, September 23 from 9 am to 12 noon at the Station on the Green, she'll host an open meeting to discuss some of the services she would be able to provide. Expect refreshments and social time from 9 am and a presentation at 10 am.

All of them, she explained, would cater to seniors who are trying to stay in the home but are finding it hard to stay active in the community, either because of physical disability or deteriorating mental abilities.

The first, and most obvious, option, would be some type of weekly day program. This, said Shannon, could be a five-hour program with lunch included, featuring a whole range of activities from physical exercise and cognitive programs to creative visual arts, guest speakers and musical performances.

"The key is that it would be a really social time," she explained. "People need to be able to do things with their peer group in a setting where they're comfortable, where their dignity is not compromised."

If there is not enough interest in a regular day program, other options would include shorter programs focused on specific activities.

"I'm really hoping to get some good feedback from the meeting, so we can set up something that meets the community's needs," said Shannon. That includes the needs of caregivers as well, she noted, as those looking after seniors often find them overworked and needing a break – access to a day program, for instance, would give those caregivers a weekly chance to get caught up.

Shannon, who was an art teacher and a carpenter before entering the Sheridan program, said her chosen field is great because it combines all of her interests in one place.

"What really excites me about it is that it's a chance to provide seniors with respect – to ensure they are able to maintain the quality of life that they deserve."

Seniors and caregivers are encouraged to attend Shannon's introductory meeting and have their say about what kind of programs should be offered.

OPP seeing drop in long-weekend traffic deaths

(ORILLIA, ON) – With a busy 2013 Labour Day Long Weekend behind them, the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) reported three fatalities in OPP jurisdiction over the weekend, but they are relieved to see a steady decline in the number of Labour Day weekend traffic deaths.

As part of their ongoing efforts to save lives, the OPP stepped up enforcement on highways, waterways and trails over the weekend and particular attention was being cast on motorists who were caught driving distracted.

Sadly, a 16 year-old male died after being struck by a motor vehicle while he was skateboarding. A 41 year-old woman died in a motor vehicle collision after being ejected from the vehicle and another man (age unconfirmed) died when he lost control of his off-road vehicle (ORV).

"Despite the tragic loss of three lives this past weekend, when we look at the last five years, I am encouraged to see a 23 per cent decline in Labour Day weekend fatal road crashes in OPP jurisdiction and a 100 per cent drop in marine fatalities on OPP policed waterways," said Chief Superintendent Don, Bell, Commander, OPP Highway Safety Division. "In contrast, Labour Day weekend ORV fatalities are up 25 per cent over the same five-year period and I encourage the ORV community to work with the OPP to reduce these numbers," added Bell.

"It was disappointing to see distracted drivers continue to pose a risk to road users this past weekend, with our officers laying 397 distracted driving charges compared to 107 impaired driving charges", said Deputy Commissioner Larry Beechey, Provincial Commander, Traffic Safety and Operational Support.

According to Beechey, aggressive driving continues to be a significant problem on long weekends and the Labour Day weekend was no exception with 6,078 speeding charges and 64 street racing charges being laid (for driving 50 km/h or more over the posted speed limit).

Various other charges were laid, including 535 seat belt charges and a total of 87 Warn Range suspensions were issued to drivers with a Blood Alcohol Concentration (BAC) in the 0.05 to 0.08 range (or 50 to 80 milligrams of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood).

SAME TIME, NEXT YEAR AT THEATRE COLLINGWOOD

After the highly successful run of Forever Plaid, Theatre Collingwood is excited to be collaborating with Orillia's Laugh Out Loud team once again for TC's final show of their summer season Same Time Next Year written by Bernard Slade and directed by Dayna Tekatch, this production runs from September 18 to September 28th at the Historic Gayety Theatre.

One of the most popular and romantic comedies of the century, Same Time, Next Year follows the love affair between Doris and George who, while married to others, rendezvous with each other once a year. Twenty-five years of manners and morals are hilariously and touchingly played out by the lovers as the changing world spins around them.

"Our goal this year was to create a season of familiarity", said Executive Director Erica Angus. "We wanted to provide professional shows that were tried and true, perhaps known to our patrons, and sure to provide great talent and entertainment. I believe we have achieved this and our final show of the summer season will not disappoint".

Starring in the role of George, Brian Paul spent 2012 playing Sergeant Thunder in WarHorse at the Princess of Wales Theatre in Toronto. Brian performs across Canada and has been a company member for The Vancouver Playhouse, The Manitoba Theatre Centre, The Blyth Festival, Festival Lennoxville and The Stratford Festival. He also appears in many films and television shows. Recently Brian worked on Murdoch Mysteries, The Listener and the soon-to-be-released feature film Mr. Viral.

Alongside Brian Paul and in the role of Doris is the hilarious Robin Clipsam. Actor, director, writer and educator, Robin has spent most of her life in theatre. Recent credits include Murder In Noirville, and Thumbs (Laugh Out Loud), As You Like It, The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, The Tempest, and A Midsummer Night's Dream (PRISM Theatre In The Park), Sexy Laundry (Theatre Muskoka) and many more. Robin also teaches drama and improvisational theatre in Muskoka.

Theatre Collingwood has also started a tradition this summer of offering a post-show chat with the actors following each Wednesday matinee. This will be held directly following the 2 pm matinee on Wednesday, September 25.

Board President, Harold Bickerstaff said "this production is sure to delight you and bring you back to Theatre Collingwood the Same Time, Next Year!"

Tickets for Same Time, Next Year are available online at www.theatrecollingwood.ca, by phone 705-445-2200 or at the box office at 65 Simcoe Street, Collingwood, ON.

Beautiful voices to help St. Luke's

Cantorum Acappella Choir will be making an appearance at St. Luke's Anglican Church on September 22 at 3:00 pm. This will be a fundraiser for St. Luke's improvements to the accessibility ramp and repairs to their beautiful stained glass windows.

Cantorum was formed in 2007 with 13 individuals who wished to learn, examine and sing music which is not often heard but deserves to have an audience, that is, Early Music from the time it was first written until approximately the 17th Century. The choir sings Early Music beginning with Chants of the 12th Century; Madrigals, Motets, Carols, Chansons of the 15th and 16th centuries; polyphonic music of the Renaissance period and music which has been written more recently in these styles. The music may be secular or sacred and sung in various languages. We have recently added period appropriate accompanying instruments for some of our numbers. The Mandolin, Lute, Recorder and Drum affects, all add a new and interesting dimension to our programmes.

Many Christmas songs are still sung by everyone and easily recognizable, including Adeste Fideles or O Come All Ye Faithful and In Dulci Jubilo.

From its inception the choir has presented programmes at many different venues within the Community. They include the Collingwood Public Library, Apres Ski Services once a month at All Saints' Anglican Church, Doors Open at Trinity United Church, Blue Mountain Foundation for the Arts Appreciation Evening, the local Chapter of the Retired Teachers' Association, Tai Chi Christmas luncheon, Christian Reformed Church Adult Group and Raglan Village. In addition, the choir presents a Christmas Concert each November.

Upcoming presentations will be at the Rob Roy Church, November 3rd and our Christmas Concert, November 24th at All Saints' Church.

A GOOD YEAR FOR TOMATOES – Irene Edwards brought this beautiful beefsteak into the Echo office along with the report that it has been a fine year for her favourite crop. This specimen weighed in at 690 grams and is just one of the many she has grown at her home on the 2122 Sideroad just west of the 6th Line. Though the fruit is plentiful Edwards says they are mostly green and, like so many others, she hopes for an extended period of warmth and sunshine so they have time to reach ripeness.
