FIRE RESCUE GETS SUPPORT FROM BARRIE

By Kristi Green

Clearview has formalized a relationship with the City of Barrie to ensure that it can provide four kinds of technical rescue services to its citizens.

For years, Barrie Fire Department has provided services for confined space, chemical, biological, radiological or nuclear (CBRN), hazardous material, trench or low- or high-angle rescues (such as being trapped on a silo) in Clearview.

However, this is the first time a memorandum of understanding has been drafted to articulate the relationship.

While Clearview firefighters are trained in technical rescue services other than the four mentioned above (such as ice water rescue), it is not cost-effective for the municipality to provide the equipment and annual training that is necessary, said Acting Fire Chief Colin Shewell.

New Pres for Farmers' Market

By Kristi Green

The Creemore Farmers' Market will have a new President this spring when it opens for the 2014 season.

Sarah Hallett, who has been President for the past two years, is hanging up her baking apron to pursue a Masters degree in psychology.

She says it has been her dream to become a clinical psychologist for a long time, since studying psychology when she was 18 in the U.K. (Sarah hails from York in Yorkshire.)

For the past year, Sarah has been completing Honours Bachelors degree courses through online Athabasca Univerity and The Adler School in Toronto, in addition to running Roseberry Farms bakery in Mulmur, organizing the Farmers' Market and being mother to Thomas Hallett-Hale, Sam Hallett-Hale and Oliver Hallett.

Sarah, who came to Canada eight years ago, said her BA-equivalent British qualifications are not recognized in this country.

At the end of last year, she received the news that she could begin her Masters courses in 2014, while finishing her Honours BA.

"It came to the point where if I'm really going to do this, I've got to commit," she said.

With all her schoolwork plus a part-time job at In the Hills magazine, Sarah, who spent five years selling her goods at the Market, said she will have little time to bake.

Creemore Farmers' Market draws crowds

Market in great shape for new season

But sweet-toothed fans, take heart. Sarah will keep her hand in the baking business by producing limited goodies for the Terra Nova Public House.

Incoming President Pamela Black of Pam's Soaps will take over when she returns to Mulmur from Florida in March.

While the other Board Members are remaining, Sarah said the Farmers Market would welcome applications from vendors who would like to join the Board.

Pamela Black

"The Market is in great shape with our biggestgrowing year ever last year with the most vendors about a 30% increase - so I'm sure it will continue to go from strength to strength with Pam's help," said Sarah.

"I'll desperately miss the people at the Farmers' Market... the vendors who became close friends, and my customers."

Although many of her Masters classes will be held in Toronto on Saturday mornings, Sarah is still hoping she will be able to get to the Market once in a while to see everyone.

Cost-effective partnership

"The Clearview Fire Department provides training [for confined space, CBRN, hazardous material, trench, or low/ high angle rescues to an awareness level," Shewell explained. "We are able to identify the issue and how it needs to be dealt with. But if you're not constantly on top of the newer techniques and equipment, you can't keep up."

Colin Shewell

"We train to a certain level but specialized rescue items are not in the day-to-day operations. It is a substantial investment for training and vehicles. It wouldn't be cost-effective for us to invest in that type of service, but we still have to provide it."

Barrie Fire Department, on the other hand, provides annual training to its firefighters and owns specialized equipment for specific kinds of rescues including devices for removing people from confined spaces and trucks for rescuing individuals from trenches.

The arrangement will cost Clearview $2000 per year, which breaks down into $500 per rescue service.

Individuals who require rescue will incur the cost of the rescue. Shewell said the Township is currently reviewing its Fees By-Law to reflect this. "Specialized rescue if not feasible for the municipality or taxpayers," said Shewell.

In the agreement, Clearview Fire Department will call Barrie as soon as they arrive on the scene of a rescue that is identified as confined space, CBRN/ hazardous material, trench, or low/high angle.

While waiting for the Barrie Fire Department to arrive, Clearview will secure the area and support the rescue. For instance, if a person digging a water line becomes trapped in a trench, the Fire Department will lower oxygen, remove dirt that has been piled and stop traffic so vibrations don't cause the trench to fall in.

"We do all this so when Barrie Fire Department comes in they can actually go in with their harnesses to get the person out," said Shewell. "This goes for every technical rescue."

Clearview prioritizes ice water rescues because of its proximity to the Nottawasaga River, the Minesing Wetlands and the New Lowell Conservation Area, said Shewell. "We would provide support to other Fire Departments for this type of rescue, if called upon."

Doing the math EDITORIAL

My kids, ages 3 and 6, ask a lot of questions. Lucky for me, they are still at an age where I seem to know most of the answers. (Or they believe I do, anyway – bonus!)

"Where is Mount Kilimanjaro?"

"Is a thesaurus a dinosaur?"

"Why do I exist?" (So I have a little more trouble with that one.)

But what happens when kids need help with the things their parents don't know the answers to?

Take math, for instance. A lot has changed over the years when it comes to working out mathematical problems in school.

When I asked Heather Birchall, Principal of Nottawasaga and Creemore Public School, when the "new math" entered the curriculum, she thought it was funny because her mother would have said it was when Birchall was in Grade 7 in the 1960s. That was when her mother noticed that the math Birchall was learning in the classroom was different from the way she had done it herself.

But the pendulum has swung since then. What I meant was the math that has made its way into Canadian classrooms over the past 20 years. The kind of math that focuses a little more on how you get to the answer than what the answer is.

So, $3 \times 3 = 9$, right? Well, yes. But how did you get to that answer? Why did you go about it that way? And how does your method compare to the person's at the desk beside yours?

Some people find all this a heck of a lot to process just to answer a seemingly simple question (read about Martina Leimgardt's experience in the article on page 5).

But for children who may not be as naturally inclined toward mathematics – a category Birchall counts her school-age self in – it might give them the chance to be involved in a dialogue they might have been excluded from, or – even worse – opt out of.

Still, there is a case to be made for knowing your times tables inside out and backward. Not only can it be useful to know how many times 81 can be divided by 9, but the exercise of memorizing can be just plain good for the old noodle.

(I had a teacher who insisted upon the benefits of memorization, much to her students' chagrin. An English teacher who forced us to regurgitate passages of Shakespeare simply, we believed, to bore us to death. At the time, I couldn't understand her motivations. This wasn't thinking! It was torture, as far as my friends and I were concerned. Now I realize that what she was doing was exercising our brains. Something I admit I could spend a little more time on these days.)

The bottom line is that parents need to keep up with what their children are being taught. We need to know what and how they are learning, so that we can, in turn, support them.

NCPS is hoping to problem-solve through some of this parental bewilderment by hosting its Math Night on Monday.

Education. It sounds like a good idea to me.

Skating rink etiquette LETTER

We are lucky enough to have a wonderful community skating rink every winter. It is paid for, flooded, shovelled off and maintained by community members.

Two generous boys lent their hockey nets to the rink for community members to use for the season. Common courtesy, care and respect are required to continue to make little gems like this happen.

Sadly, this season both hockey nets have been damaged and a young boy dug a hole in the ice and tore the tarp that was generously paid for by a community member. The tarp prevents the water from escaping in the beginning stages and is the most essential part of making the ice rink.

If you find a puck that does not belong to you, please feel free to use it, but leave it at the rink when you are done, as it definitely belongs to someone else.

Please also know that although there are older kids often on the ice, they are not there to look after other children. They are always happy to include them, make room for them and skate with them, but they are not there to care for them. So please do not just drop your child off assuming that they will be looked after by the older kids.

One of the things I love about Creemore is our community's ability to work so well together to make special things like our rink possible. It would be a shame to lose it simply due to the lack of respect some community members have shown.

On a more positive note: To the young boy who brought me $1.05 in nickels and dimes to contribute to next year's rink... thank you for setting a great example! That money has been safely put in a jar until next year. Should we be lucky enough to receive more money, the funds will be used to replace or fix the two damaged hockey nets.

SCHOOL MATH NIGHT AIMS TO EDUCATE PARENTS

By Kristi Green

Martina Leimgardt always thought she was good at math. That is, until a few years ago when she started helping her son do his homework.

"When he was in Grade 6, I was trying to help him with his math homework," said Martina, of her son James Watt, who is now in Grade 10 at Stayner Collegiate Institute. (Her children Janneke and Xander Watt are in Grade 7 at Nottawasaga and Creemore Public School.) "I showed him how to do division on paper and he said, 'Mom, that's not how we do it!' I was surprised because I had always been good in math at school."

Martina is not alone. There is indeed a difference in the way math is now taught than when today's parents were students themselves. To help parents understand the "new math," which came into the classroom about 20 years ago, NCPS will host a Math Night next Monday.

"The focus in math has changed since we were kids," said Heather Birchall, Principal of Nottawasaga and Creemore Public School. "It is now about the thinking processes in math. Kids need to know how to communicate in math, just as they do in English. So they are being taught how to explain their thinking; how did they arrive at the answer? Which (of several) strategies did they use? It's trying to bring it up from simple memorization (which some people are good at and some people aren't) to understanding what multiplication is."

Math is no longer a matter of a + b = c. Math lessons are now taught in three parts with a focus on collaboration, Birchall explained. First, children learn the "big idea" of the lesson. Then, they start to solve the problem, usually in groups, building on each other's results using discussion. Finally, they pool their ideas, share their strategies and articulate what they have learned. Then, the whole group discusses which answer worked best and why.

On Monday, January 27, parents are invited to the senior site of NCPS at 240 Collingwood Street from 6 to 7:30 pm. There, math "guru" Trevor

Brown will facilitate a workshop so parents can become familiar with their children's way of doing math.

This is not NCPS' first time educating parents in the new ways of math. In spring 2010, Troy Comish (a former math consultant with the Simcoe County District School Board who is now principal at Nottawa Elementary School) visited NCPS to explain the system.

"He taught the new way of performing multiplication and division," said Martina, who is Secretary on the NCPS Parent Council. "It gave me the understanding to be able to help my children at home. It was a big learning curve and I am glad that I went."

Could you answer this?

This question was taken from a Grade 4/5 exercise:

Raul and Esteban just started working at their uncle's farm on the weekends.

Their first task was to count the ostriches and llamas.

Raul said,
"I counted 47 heads."
Esteban added,
"I counted 122 legs."

"How many are ostriches?

How many are llamas?"

asked their uncle.

"It's getting dark and I promised your mother I'd get you home for dinner. There's no time to count again. You'll have to figure out how many ostriches and how many llamas there are from that information when you get home. Can you give me a call after dinner and let me know your answer?"

How did Raul and Esteban figure out how many ostriches and how many llamas there were?

UPCOMING ARTS EVENTS FOR CHILDREN

Bring the love to Valentine's Day event

Valentine's Day is on its way and Margie Riddell (a.k.a. Miss Margie) and darci-que are pairing up to make sure the children of Creemore are prepared.

On Saturday, February 8, they will present their "A Very Valentine Day" dance and art event for children ages three and up.

For $20, boys and girls can come to Station on the Green to spend time together making Valentine's Day-themed artwork and cards, and creating a dance they will perform at the end of the day.

"It's all about friendship, love and the spirit of the day," said Margie. "It's a chance to be creative and have a part in the choreography of the dance and the projects. They will have the self-satisfaction of having done it themselves. The performance is a special Valentine's gift to share with friends and family at the end."

The Valentine's workshop is a follow up to the duo's "Nutcracker Day," which they held in November. Both are part of a series of artistic events Margie and darci-que will organize for children in 2014.

"We complement each other with movement and visuals to offer local and accessible events in the community," explained Margie, of her partnership with darci-que, which started with an art and dance camp the two ran together last summer. "Look for more pop-up events we will organize throughout the year."

While emilie que will be lending a hand at "A Very Valentine Day," Margie and darci-que are also looking for students who are interested in earning community service hours to help out at the event.

Art exhibit celebrates 20 years

Are you a creative kid? If so, submit your artwork to an upcoming exhibition at the Collingwood Public Library.

Now in its 20th year, the Magic of Children has grown over the years along with its mission to inspire and encourage children to create, exhibit and celebrate art. Its first show in 1994 contained 250 pieces. Last year, there were 425.

The art show was started by Collingwood painter Lory MacDonald, who ran a children's art program for 10 years. "I felt it was sad that no one ever saw these amazing pieces of art by kids except for their parents and friends," she explained.

So, she approached the Collingwood Library Arts Advisory Board as well as sponsors (including Clearview Township), and the Magic of Children was born.

The exhibit is not a competition. Entry is free and works are reviewed by two professional artists who, Lory said, "identify anything in it that is spectacular." Exhibitors are given art supplies as prizes at an awards reception on Saturday, March 22 from 1 to 4 pm.

If you are a kid who is in need of a little inspiration for your creation, come to a free art workshop at Cardboard Castles on Sunday, February 9 from 1 to 3 pm (parents must accompany children under 7). Pre-register by contacting 705-466-9998 or info@cardboardcastles.ca.

Children up to Grade 8 who live in Clearview Township or Collingwood can enter the exhibit by bringing their artwork to the Collingwood Public Library on Saturday, February 22 from 12 to 4 pm and Sunday, February 23 from 1 to 3 pm.

Fundraiser for new not-for-profit project

Named for the Swahili word for "success," three women in the area are hoping an upcoming fundraiser for their not-for-profit Bahati Project to help support children's initiatives in Africa is just that.

On Friday, January 31, sisters Megan Kelk, age 23, Jenn Kelk, age 29, and their friend Anne-Marie Montgomery, age 23, will host an evening of music, food, door prizes, crafts and jewellery at Terra Nova Public House in Mulmur.

The money they raise will go directly to the Bahati Project, which the three women founded last fall after visiting Tanzania in 2011.

The Bahati Project funds three initiatives: Meru View, a preschool for children whose families can't afford education themselves; Pippi House, a safe house for girls who have been living on the streets, and Newlands Orphanage.

"Meru View is funded entirely by donations," explained Megan, who lives in Mulmur. "These kids wouldn't be able to go to school otherwise."

Since Megan and Anne-Marie's first visit to Tanzania, they have raised money to support Meru View through events such as a movie afternoon in Alliston last November, Breakfast with Santa as well as Christmas craft and bake sales at Primrose Elementary School in Mulmur, where Jenn teaches Grades 7 and 8. They also accept private donations for their cause.

The fundraiser ticket price ($20 at the door) will cover some of the cost of the food, but the rest will be sent directly to Tanzania, said Megan.

In addition to having a good time, the evening at Terra Nova Public House will also provide an opportunity for Megan, Jenn and Anne-Marie to educate their guests about the three establishments in Africa.

"It's so hard for people to understand what they are raising money for without having seen it," Megan said. "So we try to give them something as well."

ABCs of family literacy

Michele McKENZIE

What would life be like without those permutations of the 26 letters and 10 numbers in the English language?

Although Family Literacy Day takes place on Sunday, January 27, we at The Clearview Public Library believe that every day is literacy day.

Take a moment (15 minutes is recommended) to play with the possibilities of words each and every day.

The ABC's of Family Literacy start with:

Act out a story with your child.

Babies enjoy looking at pictures with bright colours and faces.

Connect what happens in the book to your child's life.

Decide to make time to share a book with your child every day.

Encourage your child to tell you about their drawings.

Find comfortable places to read.

Go for a walk and talk about the signs along the way.

Help your child build language by singing, rhyming and talking every day.

Include everyone in sharing family

Jump in and play with your child.

Keep TV time to no more than one

Let your child see you reading and writing.

Make a batch of cookies and count how many there are.

Newborns benefit from reading too.

Open a book and make up a story just using the pictures.

Play a game together.

Questions your child asks help her learn.

Recognize and reward your child's early attempts at reading and writing.

Scribbles are the first step in becoming a writer.

Tell your child stories about your

Use events that happen every day to teach your child about the world.

Visit your local library and let your child choose a book (or many books).

Write a letter or a shopping list

'Xpect your child to be active. Count how many times they can hop or jump.

Your child loves to hear you talk, sing and read with him.

ZZZ – a good time to read can be just before bed.

Enjoy playing with words in the comfort of your home or come spend some time with us at the Creemore Branch of The Clearview Public Library. Join Miss Margie from Ontario Early Years as she hosts Step into Stories every Tuesday at 1 pm and Baby Time every Wednesday at 11 am.

Or book our Active Living Kit and teach a rubber chicken a thing or two about the power of words.

HUISMANS, Colin 1959 – 2014

Without a wave or a see you later, in the early hours of Monday, January 20, 2014, Colin died in the magnificent house he built on Osler Road overlooking the endless reaches of Georgian Bay. He left his wife and intrepid sidekick, Anita Lauer, his mother Maureen Huismans, his sister Wendy and his brother Mark to cope with his passing. But then, Colin never did stand on formalities.

Born in Toronto, an early career in sales and marketing, Colin lived and worked in London, England, for 10 years, before settling near Creemore in 2002. There he built two spectacular homes

His passion was evident in everything he did. He dove headfirst into a fledgling community organization, WAIT (Warnings Against Industrial Turbines) becoming co-chair in the battle that continues to threaten our rural life. Together with his colleagues, and Anita as graphic designer, Colin created a powerful citizens' campaign whose signs still grab attention throughout our countryside.

A bigger than life presence, Colin dominated a room with his wit and warmth. He was a man of inner strength and deep integrity. Nothing was too difficult for Colin to take on.

He was a master in his own kitchen, generously and regularly gathering friends, old and new, to his and Anita's groaning board. Cooking was a labour of love for Colin, one of the many great gifts of a giving man.

He had the soul of an architect melded with the talent of a fine carpenter. Colin and Anita embarked on the creation of each new home with their unlimited creativity and their goal to build the best. He'll be spitting mad at leaving the last few exquisite details unfinished.

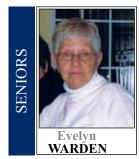

Colin was an athlete. An avid tennis player with a ferocious serve and a drive to play better and harder each time he came out. The Big Guys at Craigleith Tennis will never be the same.

Colin would say proudly that he grew up rough, but he lived a fine life indeed.

There will be a Celebration of Life on Saturday, January 25, 2014, from 1 to 3 pm at their home. 8603 36/37 Nottawasaga Side Road West, Clearview, Collingwood L9Y 3Y9

Big Heart Seniors

We had nine tables for cards with one sit out. Lucky draw winners were Lillian Hiltz, Karl Seifert, Marg Falls, Ray Leighton and Earl Bentley. There were eight Moon Shots played by Warren Gale, Brian McGill x3, Ruth Lougheed, Marg

Hope and Marj Douglas, with the travel prize to Eileen Nash. Bid euchre winners were Phyllis Seed 317, June Hartley 285, Wilma Zeggil 278 and Marj Douglas 271, and low prize went to May Johnston.

As you know, I have missed some Thursday cards due to my children needing me. Some very nice people have taken the minutes for me and this week I thank June Hartley for her help.

Very good pot luck as usual, enjoyed by 22 members. In other news, Barb Cudmore is home and doing well. Marj Thompson was back again and we are pleased to see her well. Our old friend Russ Miller has had his operation and is doing physio in Barrie and seems to be quite well.... we all hope so.

Since Ray Leighton will celebrate his birthday on Monday we all sang "Happy Birthday" to him.

Remember: Diapers and politicians should be changed often, both for the same reason.

NEW LOWELL

Happy New Year to all of my readers in and around New Lowell!

I am sure you are all settled in now after the Christmas season to enjoy winter and the fun it brings. So let's start with "the greatest little show on snow": Sunnidale Winterama, the carnival that has celebrated winter for 38 years in the village of New Lowell on the first weekend in February. Volunteers have organized this multi-day event filled with great family fun. Sunnidale Winterama takes place in New Lowell from Friday, January 31 to Sunday, February 2.

This year the annual carnival will have a "redneck" theme! New to the event is an amateur comedy night. They have got two amateur comedians booked and are looking for others who would like to try out their material. Dubbed "The Redneck Comedy Show," the fun is set for the Friday, starting at 9 pm, at the New Lowell Legion on County Road 9. Admission is $2 per person.

Another new event this year is a craft show. It will take place at New Lowell United Church on County Road 9, from 11 am to 3 pm, on the Saturday. Local crafters will have a variety of creations for sale at the show. If you would like to rent a table for your crafts, contact Jessica Co'Dyre at jessicacodyre@gmail.com or 705-424-0395. The United Church Ladies will host a bake table along with the crafts. Come in out of the cold for a visit and see the talents of your neighbours.

As with every Winterama, the fun starts with the spaghetti supper on the Friday night. It will take place at the New Lowell Legion, from 4:30 to 7 pm. The supper is organized by members of the Clearview Fire Department. The cost is $8 for people age 13 or older, $5 for children age six to 12, and children age five and under eat for free.

Following dinner, the activity shifts to New Lowell Recreation Park, where there will be a fireworks show, outdoor skating and the Burning of the Green – a massive bonfire comprised of discarded Christmas trees.

On the Saturday, the first Winterama activity of the day is a pancake breakfast delicious pancakes served with maple syrup and sausages! – at the New Lowell Legion, followed by the Winterama parade.

The theme for the parade is "Redneck Winter." It will form on Greengage Road starting at 10 am and start at 10:30 am. The prime viewing spot is along County Road 9. People interested in entering a float are asked to email hinchey@simcoemail.com or jessicacodyre@gmail.com. Come out and wave to all of your friends as they get into the Winterama Spirit! I am sure you will see many interesting floats.

Opening ceremonies for Winterama will take place on Saturday at 11 am at New Lowell Recreation Park. Several local dignitaries will be present, including Councillor Deb Bronée, who represents the area.

First up will be a demonstration from our local Fire Department; a must-see for the whole family. Children's games will then run in the park, including the always-popular "turkey bowling." Just as the name implies, it's bowling with frozen turkeys. The games wrap up around 12:30 pm when the snowmobile radar run race kicks off at the park. The cost is $10 per entry and registration is in the park from 10 am to noon.

Fans of euchre won't want to miss the tournament planned for the Saturday afternoon. It runs from 1 to 4 pm at the Legion. The cost ($4 for each person) includes a light lunch.

Saturday night is the Winterama dance at the Legion at 9 pm. Tickets are $10 each and available at the door. Co'Dyre noted they have a DJ planned for this year, and added that a variety of music will be played.

On Sunday, the Legion will host a breakfast from 9 am to noon. The Barrie Snowmobile Club Fun Run will start at 9 at the Legion.

And so wraps up the 38th year of Winterama; a perfect weekend to invite relatives, neighbours and friends to our area to see how we celebrate winter in a fun way!
